

The Richard Doll Seminars in Public Health and Epidemiology

Nuffield Department of Population Health, University of Oxford

Hilary Term (January to March) 2018 at 1-2pm
Lecture Theatre, Richard Doll Building, Old Road Campus

16 th Jan	Professor Jean Golding University of Bristol Prenatal impact on child health and development: Have we been looking at the wrong generation? Please note this seminar will take place in Big Data Institute LG Seminar Rooms
23 rd Jan	Professor Marcus Flather University of East Anglia Anti-inflammatory treatment for coronary artery disease – the CANTOS trial
30 th Jan	Professor Sally Shuttleworth University of Oxford The Emergence of Epidemiology, and Public Health Campaigns in Victorian Britain
6 th Feb	Professor John Field University of Liverpool Lung Cancer CT screening, the UKLS and European experience; time to implement?
13 th Feb	Professor Dagfinn Aune Imperial College London Plant foods, antioxidants and the risk of cardiovascular disease, cancer, all-cause and cause-specific mortality
20 th Feb	Professor David Matthews University of Oxford SGLT2 inhibition for treating diabetes – an approach which achieves far more than just lowering glucose?
27 th Feb	Professor Nicola Camp University of Utah Revisiting molecular subtyping in breast cancer: gene mapping and beyond
6 th March	Professor Graham Hart UCL The Future of Population Health Research: A ‘New Public Health’?

All welcome

Conveners: Sarah Floud and David Preiss

Email: rdseminars@ndph.ox.ac.uk; Web: www.ndph.ox.ac.uk/upcoming-events Twitter: twitter.com/rdseminars